IRREVERENCE.

"THERE MAY BE SOME DEMOCRATS PRESENT WHO ARE REPENTANT AND LIKE TO PREACH TO SINNERS. YOU HAVE HEARD OF THE FELLOW WHO SAID, 'I CAME NOT TO CALL THE RIGHTEOUS, BUT SINNERS, TO REPENTANCE.'—Delano in his speech at Raleigh.

ONLY SLUMBERING.

The Republican party, with a reckless disregard of principle, their obligations to the country or the consequences of their acts, carried out their programme with a zeal which in its intensity bordered on madness. Nothing was considered too sacred to exempt it from the withering touch of Radicalism, and in the few years in which they have had control of the government, every principle has been subverted and a practical despotism exists where once every liberty of the subject was guaranteed, and where the will of a few did not control the affairs of our Republic.

From different sections of the country a cry of warning was raised and an effort was made to stay the tide of destruction which was sweeping over the land. Radicals were told that the reason of the people would at some time assert its sway and that justice would overtake them at last.

The words were not heeded, and to-day we find that their acts are arrayed before them by an outraged public, and that men who once held the confidence of at least a portion of the people are bought before the bar of public justice to answer for their crimes.

Justice has only been slumbering, and the violators of the rights of the people will be made to answer for them, the people will make them give an account of their stewardship.

GRANT'S SENTIMENTS PRIOR TO THIS TIME.

While Republican journals gloat over the past record of Mr. Greeley and are continually casting his utterances in the teeth of the Liberals, they might with propriety reflect on the past course of their own candidate. On one occasion, President Grant, in his opposition to abolitionism and his fidelity to the Democratic party, made use of the following expression:

"I am a Democrat, and when I am convinced that this war is waged to prosecute the designs of the abolitionists, I pledge my honor as a soldier that I will carry my sword on the other side, and cast my lot with that people."

In 1866 he said: "I only voted at one Presidential election, and then I voted for Buchanan." He had always been a Democrat and yet because he paid candidate of the opposition for the Presidency. In 1868, Grant said: "The liberties of the country cannot be maintained without a one-term amendment to the constitution." He no doubt thinks now that the "liberties of the country cannot be maintained" unless he is re-elected. With the sight of office in '68 and a taste of it during his administration, all of his views have changed, and he is a staunch Republican.

THE PRESIDENT AND THE JEWS.

President Grant attempts now to deny that he issued an order during the war, expelling the Jews from Kentucky, and says his chief of staff issued it and that he countermanded it. But the Jewish population will not be deceived by any such statement. President Grant did not tell them that he only countermanded the order when commanded peremptorily by President Lincoln to do so. The Jews will not forget him for this.

LEVIES.

The employees in the government departments at Washington, and in fact, we imagine, office-holders in every portion of the country, are forced to draw largely from their private funds for the purpose of aiding the cause of Radicalism. It is what might be termed a forced levy, for he who refuses to contribute knows well his fate. It is a hard lot that these men should be compelled to give of their means for the purpose of placing Radical officials in power.

To illustrate this subject, the following circular is issued:

UNITED REPUBLICAN CONGRESSIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28, 1872.

Sir: Believing that you feel a deep interest in the success of the Republican cause, we take the liberty to enclose the committee's printed letter requesting contributions to aid in publishing documents and in defraying other necessary expenses of the campaign. If you can conveniently forward as promptly as possible, it will be gratefully received and promptly acknowledged.

Yours truly,
JAMES HARRIS, Chairman.

The Washington Herald thus comments on this policy:

What are the "other necessary expenses of the campaign," which are thus being, but vaguely referred to? Corrupting the ballot-box, buying votes, stupefying negroes with bad whiskey, inciting riots, fabricating false returns, forging registers, and the like, are the uses to which most of this money is applied. We have seen it under our eyes here at this Capital, and it is capable of proof that the same infamous practices were resorted to in North Carolina.

But besides the large sums to be employed, there is the best reason for believing that the enormous fund raised by official assessments and contributions has been made a matter of personal speculation by individual members of the committee, national and State, through whose hands the money passes, and where a goodly portion of it is supposed to "stick." That impression obtained largely in 1868, when immense contributions were made for the election of General Grant, and some of the persons who are now figuring prominently as contributors, were understood to have taken better care of themselves than the cause. Little doubt is entertained in North Carolina that the managers of Grant pocketed a large part of the fund sent down for distribution among the negroes, who were put off with small currency and large promises.

Now, it is really adding insult to injury to bleed these poor office-holders, for the "success" of the Republican candidates, and then apply their "coerced contributions" to the welfare of the suffering committee. Of course a household Senator like Harlan, who wears the purple of the palace, is like Caesar's wife, above suspicion. The Newman certificate covers him with the mantle of grace. Besides, he is rich as Croesus, and suddenly became so by his own genius, which puts him above temptation. But there are other committees less exalted in Christianity, who do not mind turning a political penny, and who, said to say, do not ever believe in the benefits of "honor among thieves." To send them money is not to serve the cause, but to fill the pockets of so many scheming swindlers. After all this we hope Mr. Harlan will withdraw his delicate appeal, or that the office-holders will be careful about "responding."

PRESIDENT GRANT AND THE NATIONAL DEBT.

The organs and followers of the administration prate loudly of the decrease of the public debt since Grant came into power, but the debt of his receiving credit for any such measure is exploded by the New York Herald.

Says that journal:

The great argument of the Grant men is that he is paying the national debt. Yes! but whose money is he paying with? And much more of it would have been paid had not so much money been paid for the national treasury by his defaulting appointees. And how much faster it would be paid if he had kept his hands off the treasury and let the money be wisely invested? And if he cared much about paying the national debt, would he have had the most extravagant administration since the government was founded? His friends talk as though he were paying the national debt out of his own pocket, as Webster once proposed to do when he saw his empty wallet down upon his desk at the Senate Chamber, but the truth is, he has grown on the spoils of his office, and has kept his friends to fortune, and has kept the public money absorbed by defaulters and squandered by the Administration without a murmur, and to-day is using the treasure of the nation to secure his own re-election for another term. And this is the man who is paying the national debt! The claim is almost too preposterous to be absurd, and those who make it must be strangely maintained, or think other men are idiots.

COUNTY EXECUTIVE COMMITTEES.

We call upon the County Executive Committees, and we trust it will receive prompt attention, to hold an investigation at each precinct in their counties and give the facts and figures in regard to frauds in the recent election. Also let them ascertain whether the registration books have been tampered with.

When a full and complete investigation has been made, let the facts be reported to Hon. D. M. Barringer, Chairman of the Democratic State Executive Committee.

We trust the Executive Committee of each county will attend to this matter, at once. They owe it to themselves and their cause.

The Richmond Enquirer of yesterday gives a most distressing account of the drought now prevailing in Louisiana and Hanover counties and adjoining sections. The very earth seems burning up under the fury of the sun.

THE BANNER COUNTY.

In your issue of Friday last you give Macon county the honor of being the banner county of the State in the gain of Judge Merrimon over the Shipp vote.

Now, gentlemen, I feel a little sensitive on this subject, though I would not pluck one leaf from the chaplet of fame which encircles the brow of gallant Macon. It may be that she has given a larger percentage on the aggregate vote than any other county, but she has not given as large a gain over the Shipp vote as glorious old Carteret. This county only gave Shipp 60 majority, and she now gives Merrimon 323, (official). There is another thing of which we can boast, and that is, we have steadily increased our majority at every regular election since 1868.

At the spring election in that year, we carried the county by about 14 majority. For Seymour and Blair we carried it by 20 majority in 1870, we carried it by 50. Last year we carried it for Convention by nearly 200, and this year we have gone up to 323. Where is there another county in the State which has not fluctuated in its majorities since 1868? Where is the county that has "piled up the agony" higher and yet higher at every election. I feel proud of such a county. SHE IS THE SUN THAT NEVER SETS. When tossed upon the sea of doubt and uncertainty, the political mariner has only to cast his eye towards this steadfast old county, and here he will see a steady light which always tells of a Conservative haven hard by. Even Henry Wilson, the "Natick Cabbler" could not obscure a single ray. Why, gentlemen, the very thought of her constancy and devotion causes a feeling of inspiration to come over me, and I cannot refrain from indulging in a little poetical quotation. Here it is:

"Like some tall cliff which rears her awful form,
Spreads from the vale, and midway leaves the sky,
Though round her breast, the rolling clouds are spread,
Eternal and unshaken on her head."

This is a long county! From the Jones line to Portsmouth is nearly one hundred miles; and consequently it is the most difficult county in the State to canvass. It is cut up by sounds, rivers, bays, creeks and swamps. Her citizens in order to reach the polls, often have to encounter the "perils of the deep"—head winds, lead tides, and very often "dead calms."

When all these things are taken into consideration, I can clearly see the opinion that old Carteret is entitled to the proud distinction of having the Conservative "Banner" of the State wave over her "true and true" sons, not omitting her lovely daughters.

A WORD TO THE LEGISLATURE ELECT.

Some Radicals down this way are offering to bet that John Pool will be re-elected to the U. S. Senate next winter. They base their hopes on the frailty of human nature, and the vast amount of money at their command. One of the leaders, (an office holder) boasted in my presence, that they would only have given votes to buy, and they would give Greeley not elected President. Who is for sale? Who, in the next Legislature, can be bribed to betray the trust reposed in him by an honest constituency? Who is so weak-kneed as to falter in the discharge of duty, even if Greeley is not elected?

M.
BEAUFORT, N. C.

Shipwrecked at Cozumel—The Cargo, Crew and Passengers.

A correspondent of the New York Herald, writing from Belize, British Honduras, gives the following particulars of the wrecking of the schooner Lizzie Webster:

It is my duty to inform you that the schooner Lizzie Webster, that cleared from New Orleans for this port on the 18th of June, was wrecked on the island of Cozumel on the morning of the 29th of June. On the morning of 28th she began to make water very fast, when the pumps were set to work. She was then in the Gulf Stream, wind from the southwest. She was headed for Havana, and it was hoped that port could be reached, but the wind suddenly hauled round to east. Cozumel was about sixty-five miles off, and she was headed for that island about two o'clock, but the pumps could not keep her clear, and so part of the cargo was thrown overboard. The pumps kept hard at work, but the water gained on them. The wind was light and it was near daylight when she was beached on the west side of the end of the island of Cozumel, where she now lies capsize and sunk. As soon as the day broke she was discharged by the inhabitants of the island, who at once took one-third of the cargo for the Yucatan government and one-third for salvage, and soon after commenced stealing the other third. But had this may be it is not half so bad as the after criminal acts, desperadoes were guilty of. They actually stole the clothing from the females and children, and this, in some cases, before the eyes of their owners.

A Mr. Heiser, who had a large number of shoes with him from London, took them and put them in a boat, and with a French woman and daughter, put off for Belize, where they arrived after twelve days' passage. There was left on the island Mr. Little, wife and five children, a German doctor and child, Mr. Pars and child and the captain and crew, all in a dreadfully destitute state. On Mr. Heiser's arrival a great effort was made to send a schooner for the passengers, and although three distinct charters were made, the owners of the vessels were obliged to decline going for them, owing to the laws in force on that island now enforced relating to wrecks and property of all who have the misfortune to be cast away on the island of Cozumel are as follows:

First, before any boat or vessel is allowed to go to the assistance of any one in distress there, they must enter and clear at Sisal, 400 miles down the Gulf of Mexico. This is a long voyage, and so expensive that no vessel can get to go there for any reasonable charge.

Then one third of any cargo is claimed for the State of Yucatan, another third is claimed for salvage, and the other third can be had by the captain and owners, if they can keep it from being stolen by the people who reside on the island.

The Mexicans have a great name for honesty—they will never steal anything beyond their reach. Still, in cases where persons are cast away, and in great distress, it is beyond all forbearance to be robbed.

Disgraced Proceedings in North Carolina—The Ballot Box a Farce.

Under this head, the New York Herald has the following:

There has been no election of late in which, from all appearances, there have been such gross irregularities and tampering with the ballot box as in the recent election in North Carolina. The politicians there are not a whit more unscrupulous and bold in their dishonest manipulation of the ballots than those of New York have been. We are inclined to think, from the information we have published, that they beat the old Tammany politicians. They know how to keep the ballots locked up and uncounted in certain localities, carrying the boxes home with them, till they learn what number of votes are required to accomplish their object. Though the law requires the Sheriffs of the precincts and townships to publicly announce the vote cast for all the candidates from the Court House door within a specified time after the election, this law has not been complied with in several localities. Our correspondent informs us that this was the case in Craven county, and that in Warren, the poll-holders, contrary to law, carried home the ballot boxes, and did not count the votes till the day after. In the First Congressional District, where Pool resides, the boxes, it is said, were held till it was found convenient to count the ballots. In several counties, claimed to be administration Republican, the vote cast exceeded the voting population. In Duplin county, the voting population is put down at 2,936; the number of votes actually reported is 3,485. And so in Cumberland, Franklin, Halifax, Lenoir, Nash, Robeson and other counties, the same suspicious irregularities and frauds are noticed. The mass of illegal and fraudulent votes polled apparently in the counties throughout the State where the negroes are most numerous and have the political power. It seems evident that the Administration Republicans have been playing a desperate game. Under such a state of things the ballot box is a farce. The Legislature, when it meets will undoubtedly investigate the matter. Though Caldwell may claim to have been elected Governor by a thousand or fifteen hundred majority, he may yet find that his bogus votes will not be recognized. Merrimon may after all be declared Governor by a handsome majority. We hope, for the sake of the purity of the ballot box and Republican institutions, the matter will be thoroughly probed and the fraud exposed, whichever party may gain or lose by the operation. And we warn the administration not to interfere, but to leave the local authorities to decide upon and control their own affairs.

A HANDSOME STOCK OF

The Raleigh Daily News.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 14, 1872.

"NOW I LAY ME DOWN TO SLEEP."

"It is said of the late John Quincy Adams, that he never went to bed without repeating this little prayer, the first taught him by his mother whose memory was so dear to him. There are two little poems, descriptive of a child saying this prayer, that are among the choicest in our language. We combine into one the best of both."

Golden head, so lowly bending,
Little feet so white and bare,
Drowsy eyes, half shut, half opened,
Lipsing out her evening prayer.

"Now I lay me down to sleep,
"Lay me," I said the line lips
Of my daughter, bending, bending
O'er the folded finger tips.

"Down to sleep," "To sleep," she murmured,
And the early head bent low;
"I pray the Lord," I gently added,
"You can say it all I know."

"Pray the Lord," "The sound ex. faintly, Fainter still," "my soul to keep,"
Then the head bent low, nodding,
And the child was fast asleep.

But the drowsy eyes half opened
When I clasped her to my breast,
And the drowsy voice softly whispered,
"Mamma, God knows a' the rest."

O, the rapture, sweet, of the
Of the soul who waits that
Children's myriad voices floating
Up to Heaven, record it there.

If, of all that has been written,
I could choose what might be mine,
It would be that child's petition,
Rising to the throne divine.
